DELIGHT AT WIND MS DECISION

Report by Andrew Morris

CAMPAIGNERS have won their four-year battle against the building of a series of wind the building of a series of wind farms in Mid Wales.

Plans for four wind farms and an overhead power line which protesters say would have "destroyed" the Mid Wales countryside have been thrown out by the Government.

Delighted campaigners say they hope the landmark decision will now also mean the end of plans by National Grid to build a 33-mile power line from Cefn Coch near Llanfair Caereinion to Lower Frankton near Oswestry.

The power line would have been needed to take the energy generated by the proposed wind farms to the national network. The National Grid plans would have seen most of the power cable carried on overhead pylons, sparking fears for the future of the region's tourism industry. Campaigners say they are delighted by the decision by energy minister Andrea Leasdom to refuse planning permission for wind farms in Llanbadarn Fynydd, Llaithddu, Llanbrynmair and Carnedd Wen. She also refused permission for an overhead power line between Llandinam and Welshpool, but gave the go-ahead for the repowering of a wind farm in Llandinam.

Victory

Jonathan Wilkinson, leader of Montgomeryshire Against Pylons, which has been fighting the plans, said: "I am left speechless by the decision. After four years of campaigning we can now say victory is ours. I would not rule out an appeal from the applicants, but today we can celebrate a historic decision. I am absolutely thrilled. Thousands of people have supported our fight and I want to thank them all."

Montgomeryshire MP Glyn Davies added: "This decision to refuse all but one wind farm planning application appealed by developers is

"This decision to refuse all but one wind farm planning application appealed by developers is really good news for Montgomeryshire.

"Our wondrous landscapes have been saved from wanton desecration. We have protected the legacy which we have enjoyed, for our children to love in the way we do. I am pleased that Department of Energy and Climate Change ministers have listened to the inspirational protest movement that rose up against the plans of the Welsh Government to destroy Mid Wales with pylons and several hundred additional turbines. "It was a wholly unreasonable and insensitive proposal." Mr Davies said he now hopes National Grid will withdraw its plans for its power line which would have served the proposed wind farms.

National Grid spokesman Stewart Larque aid: "Now that the decision on the wind farm said: "Now that the decision on the wind farm inquiry is known we will work with SP Manweb to take a look at all of the proposed wind generation in Mid Wales and confirm the work that is needed to deliver the energy from the wind farms to homes and businesses. We'll update local people as quickly as we can on our work to connect wind farms in the area. As we've always said, if it's established National Grid's connection is not needed, we would not progress with our plans."

People urged to pledge support for Syrian refugees

THE people of Oswestry will be urged to pledge their support for Syrian refugees in a town centre event on Saturday.

The event is being led by local businesswoman Jools Payne.

She is being backed by Shropshire Council leader Keith Barrow and the council partnership company, Ip&e, to set up a task force of volunteers to prepare to welcome refugee families to the area.

Mrs Payne will be at Festival Square from 10am to 1pm on Saturday with members of the Ip&e company.

She said: "We are putting together a very innovative response to the crisis involving Ip&e, different agencies that could offer support and volunteers and hope this could become a model for other areas to follow. Unlike the council, Ip&e can act quickly, more creatively and without the shackles of bureaucracy that local authorities have to follow. "This way we can have can have

"This way we hope we can have everything in place to welcome Syrian families when they arrive in Oswestry and in Shropshire."

People going along to Festival Square will be able to register their support and pledges of help to Syrian refugees and also express any concerns that they might have. Mrs Payne added: "We will also be signposting people who want to donate items to the Chalk enterprise which is collecting donations of clothing for refugees in Calais."

Are we all supposed to be shocked and horrified at the news that we are more likely to die if admitted to hospital at the ole in admitted to hospital at the weekend than on a week day? Wasn't NHS top doctor Bruce Keogh stating the obvious?

The facts he revealed are that about 11,000 more patients a year die within 30 days of going its hospital if they are desirted. year die witnin 3u days or going into hospital if they are admitted for treatment between Friday and Monday than do those who arrive on a Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. People admitted at the weekend with cancer, heart the weekend with cancer, heart problems or after a stroke were at particular risk. They had a noticeably increased risk of death, along with cancer patients admitted on Friday or Monday. For anyone who has experienced life in hospital over a weekend the reasons will be obvious. Too the reasons will be obvious. Too few doctors are on duty and not enough back-up medical services are available.

It's not rocket science, just plain common sense and the plain common sense and the confirmation gives more power to the government's prescription to make the NHS a fully fledged seven day service. I only recently learned that NHS consultants are not obliged to work at weekends or evenings under their contractual rights, though it's fair to say that the vast majority do some of the time. Two years ago I was admitted as an emergency I was admitted as an emergency patient to the Royal Shrewsbury hospital in the early hours of a Saturday morning, just a few days before Christmas, and received amazing treatment. But as the weekend wore on the sight of a doctor became as rare as hen's teeth. The result meant increased pressure on al-ready overworked nursing staff, stressed patients and a generally stressed patients and a generally unacceptable situation.

The Monday-Friday culture is simply unacceptable and the government must come up with more funding to recruit more doctors to ensure that we are all as safe on a Saturday as we are on a Wednesday. More senior staff must be available in hospitals at weakengte. but ign't that tals at weekends – but isn't that what we were promised before the election?

A vital link between patients and hospital

Hospital staff are looking for volunteers to help give patients a voice. Report by MARK ANDREWS.

FIVE years ago, after four decades working as a nurse, Julia Davies found herself on a ward as a patient. And she did not find everything as she would have wanted.

"I had been a nurse for 40-odd years, and I had worked in nursing education," she says. "As a patient I observed that some of the care was not how I was teaching it. For example, I saw patients being left in dirty bed, I saw patients being left in dirty bedclothes for too long." Today, as a volunteer ward visitor for Shrewsbury and Telford Hospital Trust, she spends several hours each week talk-ing to patients, asking how care can be improved, and reporting back to manage-

Mrs Davies, from Bridgnorth, is one of about 25 volunteers with the Patient Ex-perience and Involvement Panel (Peips), which was set up three years ago to help give patients a voice in the service they receive at Shropshire's two main hospi-tals. As we speak, she is doing a tour of wards at the Royal Shrewsbury Hospital with volunteers Julie Lock and Muriel Fellows.

"Often it is just the little things that make all the difference," she says, citing a recent concern that a patient raised about the condition of ceiling tiles in one of the wards.

"I was able to go to the management I was able to go to the management and ask when the ceiling tiles were being replaced, and the work was carried out. These things don't sound much, but when you are in hospital, these little things seem very important."

"Sometimes it can be difficult for professionals to see things through the eyes of the patients. We will do what is right, but sometimes how it feels for a patient is very different from how it fools for a proper delivering one." feels for a nurse delivering care.

Mrs Bloomfield says the volunteers are allowed free, unsupervised access to all wards and departments, and chat freely with the patients.
"Some people have said 'you are brave allowing them to go round on their own', but they are all fully trained, they understand all aspects of clinical hygiene and patient confidentiality," she says. Mrs Bloomfield says the fact she says. Mrs Bloomfield says the fact that the volunteers are drawn from the general public is hugely important, as it means patients are far more willing to talk about issues which concern them. Patient Rosemarie Hodgkinson agrees, saying it makes a big difference having a lay member of the public to talk to.

"I asked for vegetarian sausages with my breakfast," says the 74-year-old re-tired schoolteacher from Church Stretthred schooliteacher from nutrich Streten, who is recovering from a stroke.

"People think because you are vegetarian, all you eat is salad, but we like nice sausages too. I have also asked them to do something about the noise from the him?" from the bins.

Mrs Davies says sometimes it is necessary for the volunteers sometimes to gently coax the concerns out of patients.
"Usually, they will say they are fine,

"Sometimes you have to talk to them for a bit, I would say I typically get some-thing like one issue raised each month." Julie Lock decided to become involved

Julie Lock decided to become involved following the death of her husband David 18 months ago, after being approached for her input on how the hospital could improve end-of-life care.

Mrs Lock, who is 59, says communicating with patients is particularly important during the end-of-life period.

"Patients often feel scared, and it is important that staff make them feel safe by talking to them, and explaining things to them," she says.

Mrs Lock said one small change which made a big difference to patients nearing the end of their lives has been the introduction of "swan boxes", containing essential toiletries and other items to Muriel Fellows has been involved with the Peips scheme since the start, and like Mrs Davies she had worked as a nurse in the past, before switching careers to running a fine art business.

Recruit

At the moment the trust is seeking to

At the moment the trust is seeking to recruit new members to the Peips team, and Mrs Bloomfield is keen to attract people from all walks of life.
"No experience is necessary, full training is provided," she says. "We're looking for people of all ages and backgrounds, no medical experience is necessary. The volunteers will need to attend one meeting a month, that is usually held on an afternoon, and then they can spend as little or as much time as they spend as little or as much time as they spend as little or as much time as they can spare.

"Some will do six to eight hours a month, others will do 20 hours a week."

Mrs Davies says she would like to see more young people joining the scheme, saying it was ideal for a school leaver looking for experience to add to their CV. "We would really like some younger spends to give no yearted looking to see the second to give no yearted looking to give no yearted look to get the second to give no yearted look to get the second to give no yearted look to get the second to give no yearted look to get the second to give no yearted look to get the second to give no yearted look to get the second to give no yearted look to get the second to give no yearted look to get the second to give no year to get the second to give no year to get the second to get the second to give no year to get the second t people to join us, particularly on the children's wards," she says.

HOW DO I PROCEED WITH DISCIPLINARY OF EMPLOYEE WHO MALIGNED COMPANY ON FACEBOOK?

Q: I am the MD of a small business. It has recently been brought to my attention that one of my employees has been making derogatory comments about the company on Facebook. Whilst I consider this to be some kind of breach of the company's disciplinary policy I am not sure how to proceed because the employee's Facebook account is personal to him and the posts were made in his own time. How should I proceed with a disciplinary?

A: Employees with more than two years' service have the right not to be unfairly dismissed. Whilst misconduct is a potentially fair reason for dismissal, you must carry out a reasonable investigation in order to conclude, if indeed you can, that the employee is guilty of the alleged misconduct. It must also be reasonable for you to dismiss the employee on the basis of your findings.

The employment appeals tribunal has upheld an employer's decision to dismiss an employee for posting derogatory comments about the employer on social media websites. In a small company it is entirely understandable that any derogatory comment would be taken personally. However, it is important to assess the employee's comments objectively.

It is good that you have a disciplinary policy in place. However, as you rightly note, the Facebook entries have been done in the employee's own time and presumably using his own computer, tablet etc. A prudent employer should therefore have a social media policy setting out what it expects from its employees in that regard. In the event of a challenge, it is more likely that an employment tribunal would uphold a dismissal for making derogatory comments about the employer on social media where the employer has made it clear to the employee what is expected of him or her, and the consequences of breach are clear stand their needs.

They have been clear in their support for more seven-day hospital services despite the comments made by the health secretary British Medical Association has repeatedly called on the government to outline their plans for seven-day services including how they will fund and staff them.

Yet we are still no closer to finding out how the government plans to fund more weekend care or how they will ensure there isn't a reduction in mid-week services.

Doctors work as part of a team and simply adding an extra doctor to a ward will make no real difference to patients across Shropshire if the support needed is not

The government makes no mention of the extra nurses, diagnostic staff, porters, admin staff – the list goes on – that would be needed to deliver more seven-day services

Like thousands of other workers, NHS staff are already providing a first-class service, every day of the week.
This is why doctors, nurses and every-body else working across the NHS have been voicing their anger through the #Imbeen voicing their anger through the #Im-InWorkJeremy social media campaign. It is simply wrong for the health secretary to suggest that they are only working Monday to Friday.

Doctors have been clear that they would be willing to work with the Health Secre-tary to better improve weekend services.

So if he wants to put patient care first and foremost he should work with those who spend each day doing just that.

IT takes about two minutes to put the ket-tle on and make a cup of tea. Did you know that at least two billion people in the world have never done that? They have to walk some distance to fetch the water and then make a fire. They have never enjoyed the luxury of a shower or bath, or flush toilet, never seen a fridge or, washing machine or never seen a fridge or washing machine or used a phone never seen a triage or wasning machine or used a phone.

What would you do if you saw a child sitting crying on the street with just a few rags on and starving? Carry on walking, it's not my problem, I can't afford to help, don't give to charity. The Government should not be giving £12 billion foreign aid.

Well let's get things in proportion, for instance, nationally we spend about £40 billion on alcohol and tobacco, spend so much on food that half of us are grossly overweight, even though we waste a third of it. Instead of taking a sun-seeking holiday or cruise, take a trip to a poor country in Africa for a change. No social services, but read caring communities.

rent reforms county hard

WITH respect to the government's intended crackdown on profits made by landlords it is interesting to note that approximately 25 per cent of Tory and 12 per cent of Labour MPs are landlords.

But most agree that tax breaks have given landlords an easy ride and reform is necessary. It is these tax breaks on rental income that are planned. The 2011 census consisted of 23.4 million households of consisted of 23.4 million nouseholds of which 4.2 million (17.9 per cent) were privately rented. Since then the percentage of renters has risen and is expected to reach 25 per cent of the population and 50 per cent of those under 40.

As is usually the case the rental prop-erty market in London is very different from that in the rest of the country. In the from that in the rest of the country. In the regions the capital value of property has been virtually static for some years while in London gains have been significant. The London landlord is after this capital gain and as rent is a factor it is not nearly as significant as it is in Shropshire. It therefore follows that the proposed reduction of tax benefits on rental income will hit Shropshire harder. It is the case that many Shropshire landlords have already offloaded portfolios when the capital gain allowance period on second properties was allowance period on second properties was reduced from three years to 18 months. If your business plan includes profit from renovation this leaves you with a lot less time before having to sell or rent without penalty and therefore leases of six months or a year are a problem.

"This is the second year we have been here in September. We moved it from May because it was always raining. Since we've being doing it in September its always been sunny." The businessman said he hoped to be making about 50 balloons a year, and he felt the economy was definitely picking up. He said one of the main reasons for his business success was his Oswestry workforce, many of whom had been with him for 30 years.

IF you are ready for the dramatic interior styles of the coming season, here are three key looks to inspire a sumptuous home transformation.

If they sounds a little too rich for your decor palette, go for more subtle interpretations – no trend's worth following just for the sake of i;, it must suit you, your lifestyle and your taste, too.

That said, there's plenty to excite that could bring that requisite personality to rooms, and make your home awesome for autumn.
MIDNIGHT BLOOMS

MIDNIGHT BLOOMS

Feel free to play with this versatile trend and be as subtle or daring as you wish. Conjure sultry colonial settings with dark, exotic blooms, or whip up a wilder gypsy chic.

"We're seeing a modern take on a classic floral look, which will achieve a bold statement in any room," says Abigail Bomford, senior design manager at George Home.

"Combine dark purple shades and oversized, dramatic floral prints against a neutral backdrop of softer hues of dusky lilacs and blush tones. For the less colour confident, focus on tones. For the less colour confident, focus on tones. For the less colour conneent, locus on a floral print and pair with washed-out white accessories to conjure a soft, romantic atmos-phere so prevalent in the autumn collections." ON-TREND TREATS: Rich berry shades are perennially popular and most of the leading homes collections have embraced them. Jew-

GO GREEN

Green is the new 'black' - that's the decree of the decor experts who are plumping for a trend already emerging strongly in fashion.
"Mix deep bottle or racing car greens with ochres, brick reds and aubergine purples to create a luxurious, layered feel," advises Stephanie Chen, director of home, Marks & Spencer. "Accessories in materials such as marble, polished brass and crushed velvets, will add a further luxury touch and interest to a room."

ON-TREND TREATS: Conjure a wild green backdrop with designer Christian Lacroix's Pantigre (tiger and panther print) wallpaper, in a Topaze Kiwi – a green, grey and black – colourway, £83 a roll from Amara.

Teal green is a top choice, and a Laura Oakes table lamp, with teal base and printed shade, £75, Debenhams, would give a nod to the trend. Partner that with her 'Lily Bloom' scented candle, £16, in a green glass container.

It is important to stop the rot

and expensive problem, but if you know what to look for and catch it early, disaster can be averted

There are two types of rot: wet and dry, but what's the difference? Caused by a type of fungi, wet rot is the most common, but least serious, kind of rot.

The fungus takes hold in damp, wet wood, but remains confined there, unlike dry rot, which spreads, so it's usually straightforward to spot and deal with. Affected wood feels spongy and soft and will usually crumble timber that's routinely exposed to moisture, such as the outside of wooden windows and doors, especially if the paint or varnish has flaked off or cracked, but it can occur under paintwork that appears intact.

The first thing to do is stop water coming into contact with your wood. Treating wet rot isn't difficult. The wood's soft so you can easily remove the worst of it. Use a wood-hardening liquid, such as Ronseal High Performance Wet Rot Wood Hardener (£7 for 250ml, B&Q) to harden the remaining wood, then fill on top building the filler up in layers if necessary

Polycell Polyfilla for Wood - Large Repairs (£9.99 for 500g, Homebase) is an ideal option. If the rot's widespread, it may be easier to remove all of it and splice in a new piece of wood or get a carpenter to. Dry rot is also caused by a fungus (serpula lacrymans), but one that's far more destructive.

Whereas wet rot often occurs in exposed places, dry rot is more likely to be hidden. It thrives in moist, poorly ventilated spaces, such as under wooden stairs and floorboards, making it hard to spot. Another problem with dry rot is that the spores travel fast, so the whole structure of a building – both the walls

The signs to look out for are wood cracking in a cuboidal way, a musty odour and mush-room-like growths.

The growths can be different colours – they're often whitish grey (sometimes with patches of yellow and lilae) and when they're most dangerous, orangey-ochre, with spores resembling brick dust.

To treat dry rot, you need to solve the cause of the damp. All the affected wood, and wood on either side, must be removed, but doing so can spread the spores, so the remaining

Any structural woodwork will usually need to be replaced.

This isn't a simple DIY job and because it's so important to eliminate the fungus completely, is best left to the professionals.

On the topic of wood care, now is a great time to spruce up garden wood before the reather turns too autumnal.

Alcro Fasad Opaque Wood Stain (£22 for 1t, www.alcropaints.co.uk) contains linseed oil, comes in a huge range of colours and is designed to colour and protect exterior wood.

WATERWAYS OF EAST SHROPSHIRE DAWDLING IN THE DALE

By Neil Clarke

Published by Amberley You couldn't have a better author for a book like this than Neil Clarke, a Shropshire historian who is an expert on the county's transport and industrial history, and in particular on the waterways and ferries.

He is an excellent fit then, and his text is concise, inform informative, and interesting, and there is a good range of pictures, many in colour, to tell the story of the River Severn and the many canals in this part of Shropshire which have now disappeared so completely that some people don't even know that they existed. let alone where they ran. A few clues and relics remain, like ghosts from the past.

The book is part of mberley's "Through Amberley's Time" series

By John Mountford

By ATD Evans Sid Caddick was a grocer at Corfton in the Corvedale who had a favourite hobby in photography, which is a stroke of fortune for later generations as his pictures are a rare record of a way of life in Shropshire which has either changed or disappeared forever. The same is true of some of the buildings that Caddick pictured in the Corvedale all those years ago.

David Evans of Clun has done a great job in bringing Caddick's pictures together and presenting them in this book, fleshing them out with his own historical insights and information.

It's a book to savour and enjoy for anybody associated with the Corvedale and its villages and the photos are well presented.

And the town's annual show also saw many visitors come to the area. A more intensive service and a larger collection of exhibitions saw the steam gala hailed a huge success. A loco named Dougal, built in 1946 for a Glasgow gasworks, travelled home from the Onslow Steam Rally in Shrewsbury, where it had taken pride of place over the August Bank Holiday weekend, to become one of the star attractions. Visiting steam locomotive Pakis Baru No 5 also turned plenty of heads during the rally after travelling all the way from Tamworth for the weekend.

Railway spokesman Andrew Charman said: "The whole weekend went incredibly well and it has been our busiest rally for some time.

"Dougal travelled up from Shrewsbury on Friday night and his final journey from Welshpool station to Llanfair Caereinion formed part of the weekend.

"Pakis Baru ran over the entire weekend and both were probably the star attractions in the most intensive train service we have ever put on."

ming high with Tucson

Until the arrival of this Tucson model, Hyundai's idea of a Qashqai-style family Crossover model was encapsulated by its ix35.

That car sold quite well but somehow, never quite captured the imagination of the buying public. The Tucson though, is a leaner, meaner-looking contender that might well catapult the Korean brand into credible contention in this important growing segment.

Back in 2004, Hyundai launched what should have been a ground-breaking model. Three years before Nissan's Qashqai launched the buoyant market for family-sized Crossovers, the Tucson could have been that car As it was the Tucson was marketed as a small SUV, sold poorly and was eventually replaced in 2010 by a model the Korean brand did pitch as a family Crossover, the ix35. Now though, the Tucson name is back, this badge attached to a design that replaces that rather apologetic-looking ix35 and which brings a fresh sense of dynamism to Hyundai's presence in the Crossover sector.

People have come to expect a lot when it comes to driving Crossover cars. Although they want a lofty perch, they also want to feel like they could be driving a hatchback. The Tucson delivers exactly this blend of virtues, hence its very road-biased suspension setup – and the overwhelming emphasis on two wheel drive models across the range.

At the lower end of the range, there's a choice of a 132PS 1.6 GDi petrol or a 116PS CRDi 1.7 diesel. Move a little higher and you can upgrade to a turbocharged 1.6 GDi with 177PS. Diesel fans will find a 2.0 CRDi with either 136PS or 185PS. If you want 4WD, the 2.0-litre diesels.

That 4WD system is fine for slippery surfaces but don't expect a great deal of mud plugging ability. As usual with Hyundai models, there's the option of varying the feel of the steering feedback, via different modes.

It's in this area that Hyundai has arguably made the biggest step forward. With an imposing hexagonal grille and sleek Santa Festyle headlights, the Tucson is a good looking Crossover.

Climb aboard and the overall fit and finish is a big improvement on the ix35, with a well laid out dashboard. If you find the interior a little dark, then there's the option of a cream lower half to the fascia which does brighten things up significantly.

Space

There are 513-litres of seat up boot space available (or slightly less if you go for 4WD), Fold the seats down and this capacity increases to 1503-litres (or 25-litres less for 4WD). Rear seat space is good, although the rear doors are a little on the small side

The range may start at less than £19,000 which gets you entry level S trim with the non-turbo 1.6 petrol engine. Spend another £1,500 or so and you can opt for the 1.7 CRDi diesel. If you want the bigger diesel, then you'll need to look at 'SE Nav' trim at iust over £24,000, with a further 4WD option adding nearly £2,000 more. If you want auto transmission or the higher output 185PS diesel and 177PS petrol engines, you'll have to pay for 4WD.

Even base 'S' trim comes with kit like a DAB digital radio and Bluetooth connectivity, plus USB and AUX connections, 16" alloy wheels, air conditioning and auto headlights. Next up is the 'SE' grade which adds 17" alloy wheels, rear parking sensors, heated front seats and dual zone climate control, plus the option of an 8" touchscreen sat nav system. Plush 'Premium' trim includes sat nav as standard, plus 19" alloy wheels, leather seats, front parking sensors, auto wipers and heated rear seats. Finally the top 'Premium SE' grade adds a heated wheel, keyless entry, a Smart Parking Assist System on autos, an electric tailgate, LED headlights, an opening panoramic glass roof and ventilated front seats.

'Tough looks of an SUV, sensible practicality of a five-seater MPV and the affordability of a family hatchback.3

All models get six airbags, ABS with brake assist traction and stability control Plusher models gain a Lane Keep Assist System (LKAS), Rear Cross Traffic Alert Autonomous Emergency Braking (AEB) and Blind Spot Detection (BSD). The higher the model, the safer you'll be.

So, what do we have? The tough looks of an SUV, the sensible practicality of a five-seater mini-MPV and the affordability of a family hatchback. These are the facts behind a Tucson model good enough to attract many new buyers to the Hyundai

Sizzler on road and track

By Matt Joy

There's always room for improvement, even in the world of supercars. McLaren goes hunting with its lighter, faster and more powerful 675 LT.

Creating an even faster, track-ready version of an existing supercar could be achieved very quickly - and cynically; an engine tweak here, a bigger wing there.

But that's not how McLaren has gone about creating the limited run 675 LT. The Long Tail name references the F1 Long Tails created for further dominance in motorsport, and this road car is designed to work on the track too.

There's more power, but from an engine that is 50 per cent new. It's 100kg lighter, thanks to extreme measures like a slimmeddown wiring loom, improved aerodynamics also give the 675 a distinct look compared to its 650S sibling, and some clever features like the track telemetry app so you can play at being an F1 driver.

McLaren's first road car of recent times was pretty and functional, but during the intervening years, the style and impact of each model has consistently improved. The 675 LT is both dramatic and attractive, with the aero package adding to the race car look. It gives the bigger (and much more expensive) P1 a run for its money in terms

On the image front there's very little to touch the 675 LT. Not only does it benefit from being limited to just 500 examples, the racing pedigree can't be bought.

You'll want to leave the shopping at home, although if you're a bit of a show-off you can head for the local supermarket and return with 144 litres of goodies. More importantly the cabin space is good; the dihedral doors open up and away, and although the bucket seats are slim and require a little care, once you're in, the driving position is excellent and the view out is good.

There are also a few areas to store odds and ends, even cup holders, but you won't want to use those if you're exploiting the performance.

The 3.8-litre twin-turbocharged V8 delivers 666bhp (675PS in metric, hence the name) and 516lb/ft of torque, and with a kerb weight of just 1,230kg the performance is utterly spectacular. A sub-three-second to 62mph is a given, but the 0-124mph time of 7.9 seconds is borderline ludicrous. It might be turbocharged but the engine is hugely flexible and responsive, and in the right engine mode the quick-snap gear changes accompanied by glorious pops from the exhaust.

The way the 675 LT behaves on road and track is equally stunning. With the scant restrictions of the track to worry about, you can revel in the grip, the balance and the delicacy of its behaviour, even at high speeds and with big g-forces.

As well as the aero changes, the 675 has tweaked ESP settings that are separate from the Handling mode, so you can have softer suspension on the road, but still with a loose safety net or the complete opposite on the track

It's surprisingly friendly yet enormously involving, and of course, huge fun.

There is a substantial premium for the 675 LT over the 650S, but it's worth remember

'Any lucky so-and-so in the fortunate position to buy one should be queuing up for a unique exterior, revised suspension, lightweight parts and extra performance give a notably different feel from its sister car. Even the telemetry system, which gives you the kind of data level that Mr Button and Mr Alonso get to play with at week-ends adds to the experience. And say it quietly, but a car like this limited to just 500 worldwide won't lose too much money in a hurry.

Any lucky so-and-so in the fortunate position to buy one should be queuing up for a 675 LT. There's always a market for 'everyday' supercars, but over and above that the track-focused versions are seeminaly more in demand: the idea being you can drive your steed to the track, enjoy some hot laps and drive it home again, all without having to do anything other than fill it with fuel. You'll need to be on good terms with your McLaren dealer though; apparently all 500 are spoken for.

This car summed up in a single word: Sizzling. If this car was a Jet fighter it would be running rings around its enemies.

Great family bus that kids will love, but a little pricey

By Matt Kimberley

At the risk of sounding a bit blase, not a lot. Seat has kept much of the Alhambra's winning formula untouched, only tweaking the styling, the engines and adding the latest connectivity thanks in part to a new partnership with Samsung.

You still get seven seats, two built-in booster seats in the middle row, sliding rear doors and options for petrol, diesel, manual and automatic. If you look really (really, really) closely, you might also notice the new Seat logo.

The Alhambra doesn't look all that bad for a family bus, adding a few Leon-esque touches without going too crazy.

Dads will appreciate the boredom bypass but mums won't think it looks too sporty to be a good family car. It's clearly no automotive sex symbol, but it's a solid choice for looks.

As for image, the Alhambra is something of an unsung hero, derided by those who'd never buy one anyway, but oved by the people who own one.

It might not be a glamorous choice (it isn't), but its owners ould tell you it's a good one.

Even with all seven seats up and occupied there's still an impressive boot, good enough for one really large suitcase with soft bags on top, or two medium cases plus extras. Fold the back seats down - this isn't as easy or quick as you'll see in some rivals - and you're left with a cavernous boot good enough for anything a family might need to shove into

The sliding doors, complete with holders for large bottles, are a huge boon in car parks and the two built-in booster seats mean that kids of around 4-11 years old can escape the need for an aftermarket unit.

To maximise passenger room, the three individual seats in row two slide forward and back. Adults approaching sixfeet tall will find it a squeeze in the child-centric row three out everywhere else affords lots of head and shoulder room.

Quality

Believe it or not (you MPV cynic, you) the Alhambra is far from terrible to drive. Selecting Comfort mode within the adjustable damper settings rewards with an impressive ride quality you'll love, while the cringe-inducing Sport mode body control in the corners.

You sit high in this car; easily at compact SUV height. There's a great view of the road ahead as a result, and there's every chance that even nervous drivers would gain confidence behind the wheel.

The DSG twin-clutch automatic gearbox is a boon around town, whispering effortlessly through ratios, but it's perhaps too keen to kick down gears and bypass the meat of the die-sel engines' torque. The manual gives more useful control for acceleration. There are no such braking worries, as the chunky Seat stops on a sixpence.
Value for money . . .

Ah. This is where it starts to look a little worse for the Alhambra. The entry-level petrol model just about dips beneath the £25,000 mark, while the mainstream models fall roughly between the £28,000 and £33,000 marks. That's fabulously expensive for a car of this type, especially considering that the adjustable dampers aren't standard (£935) and you also have to pay more than £1,000 extra to add powered actuation to the tailgate and sliding doors on the cheaper trim grades.

Families and user-chooser company car drivers with three or more kids are the main buyers here. Seat predicts a 70/30 split towards business sales, so the typical Alhambra driver is likely to be a family man or woman with a few kids at home and a desire for both space and comfort.

This car summed up in a single word: Friendly If this car was a children's TV show it would be Peppa Pig. The kids love it and the parents become strangely attached.

High-class cabin for stylish new Kia Optima

The all-new Kia Optima will duced from 0.3 to 0.29 Cd. The all-new be unveiled in European specification at the Frankfurt International Motor Show on September 15.

The fourth-generation Optima, which will go on sale across Europe in Q4 2015, has a modern, new exterior, a bold interior design with more space for all occupants, an array of new technologies and a wide choice of efficient power-

The new model will offer greater refinement and improved ride and handling over the outgoing model, while retaining the sporty image that has helped Optima become one of Kia's best-selling models worldwide.

The Kia Optima plays an important role in the Kia Motors Europe product line-up, introducing the brand to an increasing number of new customers. Since the third-generation model launched in 2011, with its distinctive look, high-quality interior and high-tech image, the Optima has offered buyers something fresh and different in the D-seament

The all-new Optima's evolutionary new look was designed to be functional and sporty, with exterior dimensions that are marginally longer, taller and wider. These changes enable a room-ier and more comfortable cabin, with more head-, shoulder- and rear-seat leg-room and greater cargo capacity. From a styling perspective, the new dimensions afforded Kia's designers the chance to introduce a more sweptback, dynamic shape.

This attractive new design makes the fourth-generation model the most aerodynamic Optima to date, with drag reOptima will be available in Europe in a choice of nine paint colours, and will ride on alloy wheels ranging from 16- to 18 inches in diameter.

The material quality of the all-new Optima's cabin is significantly improved over the outgoing model, with a far higher proportion of soft-touch materials, as well as cloth and leather trim in natural tones. Tasteful metallic accents throughout the cabin add a higher quality ambience to the interior.

The larger interior and exterior dimensions of the fourth-generation Optima ensure that the all-new model is the most practical, spacious and comfortable. Cargo space has grown from 505 to 510 litres (VDA), with the under-floor storage area and a wider boot opening adding greater practicality.

The all-new Optima features uniquely engineered body which combines more high-strength materials than ever before, resulting in even higher standards of crash safety. While passive safety is improved, the new model is also equipped with a series of high-tech active and autonomous safety features, and Kia's engineers have targeted a five-star Furo NCAP safety rating throughout the Optima's development programme.

Kia's vehicle stability management is fitted as standard, ensuring stability under braking and cornering by controlling the car's electronic stability control and electric motor-driven power steering if it detects a loss of traction. The Optima is available with a wide range of optional active hazard-avoidance technology, by market.

Improving ride and handling was a top priority for Kia's dynamic develop-ment teams, with a focus on delivering the ride comfort and stability customers achieving the level of agility promised by the car's sportier appearance. With a lighter, stiffer chassis, the suspension is better able to isolate vibrations and bumps from poor road surfaces, while a series of upgrades to the suspension set-up helps to blend agile handling with an improvement in ride comfort.

The all-new Optima debuts a number of new, advanced on-board technologies to improve usability, comfort and convenience. The new technologies featured make it the one of the most innovative cars in the D-segment. The touchscreen infotainment system is paired with a six-speaker audio system as standard. A powerful Harman Kardon Premium Sound system, featuring 10 speakers, an external amplifier and Clari-Fi MP3 restoration technology, is also available as an option.

A first for any car in the D-segment, the all-new Optima will be available with a new wireless charger for mobile devices, allowing the new model to meet the increasing demand from car buyers - particularly in this class - for new convenience technologies. The all-new Optima will be available with a range of engines when it goes on sale across Europe later this year, striking a balance between performance and efficiency. Driving the front wheels, every engine in the range is compliant with latest Euro 6 emission standard, resulting in cleaner emissions. The Optima is popular among both private and fleet buyers, and the fourth-generation model offers the choice of either a die sel or petrol engine, each engineered to meet the varying needs of all types of customers.

The all-new Kia Optima will offer company's unique seven-year, 150,000km warranty as standard.

four but FC Oswestry in late giveaway

Goal - Chris Bishop fires his fourth for FC Oswestry Town

LATE four goal blast stunned A LATE four goal blast stunned FC Oswestry Town who slipped to their second defeat of the season in the Mercian Regional League premier division with a 6-5 reverse at Childs Ercall.

After the previous week's loss at AFC Bridgnorth reserves, Town were on course to bounce back after carving a 5-2 lead before being downed in a dramatic finish. With many keys players unavailable, they had looked vulnerable right from the kick off and soon fell behind after two minutes.

The home side were dominating but Town managed to weather the storm and, after 25 minutes, Chris Bishop beat the offside trap to slot home the equaliser – the first of his four goals.

The visitors were now on top and went close when Rich Morris saw his diving header cleared off the line, but on the stroke of the interval they conceded from a corner.

Manager Nick Maguire ral-Manager Nick Maguire rai-lied the troops at half time and they came out of the blocks with a another fine finish from Bishop to equalise. Town soon took the lead when Jordan Gerrard bent at fee blick record the well into the free-kick around the wall into the bottom left corner, Bishop then completed his hat-trick with Town scoring three goals in seven min-

Bishop then slotted home his fourth to give Town a 5-2 lead with 20 minutes to play, but the visitors had to shuffle the back with centre back Gerrard withdrawn due

This opened the door for the home side who piled on the pressure to stage a remarkable comeback with four goals to leave the visitors scratching their heads in disbelief.

Stung by defeat, boss Nick Maguire will be looking for his side to bounce back on Saturday when they travel to Shifnal reserves (3pm).

Gobowen Celtic, meanwhile, suffered their first defeat in division one after going down 3-1 at early leaders Clee Hill United.

Bishop hits Tennis ladies edged out in title thriller Welshpool

IN a thrilling finish to the season, Oswestry Tennis Club's ladies first team missed out on the Shropshire League division one title on the last night. Enjoying their best campaign by far, the team knew they needed to take maximum points from their last match against Team Mosaic.

However, despite their efforts, they could only pick up five points out of the possible eight after the match finished level with two rubbers apiece, and had to settle for runners-up spot.

With the weather starting to look very unsettled, the match started against their Shrewsbury opponents with anticipation and some nervous tension.

Malherbe and Fiona Russell got into their stride early but then found the going too tough and unfor-tunately lost in straight sets.

However, the second pair of Kat Oakley and Eirian Lloyd-Jones battled their way to a comfortable straight sets win against Mosaic's second pair. Going into the reverse rubbers, the ladies knew that the championship unfortunately had slipped between their fingers.

that the championship unfortunately had supper between their fingers.

But they continued to battle on, despite a rain delay, with Malherbe and Russell taking their rub-ber easily against Mosaic's second pair, while Oakley and Lloyd-Jones gave it their all against the first pair losing out in a tie break.

With the overall match ending in two rubbers each, the result was decided on games won with Oswestry ladies taking victory by five points to three. With captain Josie Macrae sidelined due to illness, she could only watch as her team did their utmost to bring home the championship.

Despite the ultimate disappointment, she couldn't have been more pleased with the team's performance throughout the season and it was still a mas-mance throughout the season and it was still a massive achievement to finish in second place, losing the title by a mere 2.5 points.

It was the best result that the club has had within a highly competitive and high standard league.

Throughout the competition, Oswestry ladies lost only one match on games in what was the best season in the club's history. The club will now embark on the Autumn Mixed League.

FOOTBALL by John Bridgwater

BOSS Craig Harrison insists there's no cause for alarm as The New Saints strive to find the killer instinct in Saturday's Welsh Premier clash with Port Talbot at Park Hall (2.30pm).

After dropping four points in their last two outings with the 1-1 draw against Llandudno followed by a goalless stalemate at Rhyl, the defending champions will be anxious to start firing on all cylinders again.

fending champions will be anxious to start firing on all cylinders again.

The Rhyl deadlock saw TNS slip to third in the table, four points adrift of early leaders Newtown who have won all three games.

Despite still unbeaten, it has been a frustrating start for the title favourites who will want to get back to winning ways as quickly as possible.

But Harrison remained upbeat as he prepares for fixture against a Port Talbot who have lost their last 10 meetings with the Saints.

"The players are working hard, but perhaps they need to be just that bit smarter," he said. "We've been dominating possession, pushing teams but not capitalising on our chances

"It's been a little bit disappointing that we're not creating more chances in the final third, but we're not a million miles away.

"As champions, we're there to be shot down, teams want to get points off us, and it's a challenge we thrive on. Teams are well organised and defend well, so it's up to us to beak them down.

"We're only three games in, and you're going to have sells when things don't muite go as you to have sells when things don't muite go as you defend well, so it's up to us to beak them down.

"We're only three games in, and you're going to have spells when things don't quite go as you want. We've been in this situation before and I'm sure we'll come through it again.

'Five points from three games is not the worst record in the world, but we set our standards high and we want to try and win every game.

"We'll be working hard this week on what we need to do to win games again."

The Saints can take confidence from their past dominance against Port Talbot, having won the last 10 league meetings, both home and away, while scoring 45 goals and conceding just five. They have also won 10 of the last 11 league meetings involving the sides at Park Hall, while scoring six goals on three occasions and five twice.

HIGH-RIDING Rachel Atherton has capped a triumphant season by recapturing her World Championship Downhill title in stunning style. It was the third senior women's world crown for the Llanrhaeadr ace and fourth overall having also won as a junior in 2005. This latest win on the Andorran downhill track in Vall-nord tops off a season which also saw Atherton take six out of seven World Cup rounds and the overall World Cup Championships.

While Atherton reclaimed her "Rainbow Stripes", there was disappointment for her brother Gee who lost his own Rainbow jersey. The 2014 champion crashed hard after clipping his pedal on a seemingly innocuous part of the course. Their GT Factory Racing team-mate, Martin Maes, took second place in the junior championships.

And then it was all down to Atherton, who again showed her technical prowess to cross the line in 05mins 08.48, a convincing 3.2 seconds clear of the field to take her fourth World Championship title and her second World Championship "double" in a season. "I can't believe it," she said. "I knew it would be hard, you have to hang on so tight. Having been beaten by Manon last year, I really wanted the title back so I'm so happy."

Guils lose thriller after extra-time

GUILSFIELD went out of the Word Cup

GUILSFIELD went out of the Word Cup with heads high after taking Welsh Premier visitors Gap Connah's Quay to extra-time in a pulsating first round clash. The Cymru Alliance side produced a stirring display, but were unable to capitalise on their chances as the tie went into the extra period.

And it was Connah's Quay who broke the Guils' hearts to win through 3-0 with a brace from Sean Miller and one from Nicky Rushton, although the visitors had Callum Morris sent off in the final minutes to taint their win.
